

Hi, I'm
Kavitha

Hello!

Thank you for taking the time to read my story. I'm both nervous and excited to share myself and my family with you. While it's hard to fit a whole life into a little book, I'll try my best to show you all of me, my family, and my world. I have so much respect and appreciation for you. I can only try to understand the incredibly important choice you are contemplating, as an adoption plan is the most selfless act that you can ever do. It's an incredible testament to the wonderful woman you are and the love you have for this child.

I knew when the time was right, adoption would be the path I would take to become a mom. I believe adoption is as natural as any other option. I strongly believe that the lives we make with others and our family of choice are more than just the genetics we share.

My Story

About Me: was born in India, I am the youngest in the family, and have been living in the USA since 2003. I came to USA to pursue Master's Degree in Computer Science. I went to school in Louisiana. I lived in Connecticut and Maryland for a few years before moving to Texas. I have always wanted to be mom and had a strong desire to provide love, support and a stable home for a child.

What My Family Says: "Kavitha enjoys problem-solving and creating structure out of chaos and has made that her career. She works in IT coordinating software projects. She is curious and approaches the world enthusiastically. Her favorite thing is making herself and other people laugh. Kavitha's best qualities are her friendliness and ability to think outside the box. She is full of love that she wants to share with those around her."

What I Do: I manage software projects and teams. I have a Master's degree in Computer Science, and work from home with the flexibility to choose my work hours. I teach programming to middle schoolers and high schoolers during my free time. I enjoy teaching music to little kids and have fun singing along with them.

Interests: I love to sing and cook. I like to read, practice yoga, travel, bike in the neighborhood, see my friends and their children, and FaceTime my friends and family living around the world. I also love painting, crafts, petting zoos, and the children's museum, all of which will be way more fun with a little one!

My Home

I lived in Baton Rouge, Hartford, and Baltimore, but Texas has been my home since 2016. I've put down strong roots! I have created a warm and loving home here where I'm ready to grow my family.

My home is colorful and bright, full of art, plants, books, and whimsy. It's a wonderful combination of modern and cozy. I have the perfect room for a light-filled nursery that I am waiting to be filled with the sound of a baby's laughter!

I have a small garden in the backyard and I like to spend some time there whenever I can. Kitchen is the most happening place in my house, we love to gather and cook together especially during holidays. I also love to relax on the couch in the living room every now and then.

PARK NEAR MY HOUSE

Cousin's visit to my place

I live in the city, central to everything, in a diverse and vibrant neighborhood full of sculptures, museums, and parks. We can walk to several parks including the second largest park in the city. The public library is just three blocks away and hosts Baby and Toddler Storytime weekly. Our neighborhood is zoned to a district with several great schools where the child will receive an excellent education.

WITH FRIENDS ON A MOUNTAIN

I am so blessed to have many wonderful children in my life. I have my nephews in Dallas, cousins spread across various states in the USA and India, and a fantastic array of friends' children. I am full of hugs and kisses for the children in my life! I love to cuddle up on the couch, read storybooks, and do art projects. I can't wait to be a mom!

Snowy (Pet Dog): I adopted Snowy in 2018, and he let me play with him. He loves to cuddle and follows me everywhere I go. He has been my friend since he was six-weeks-old and is great at napping, catching toys in mid-air, and trying to do yoga with me.

Parents and aunt

We are a diverse family. I have cousins spread across various states in the USA and also in India. I have an older sister who lives three miles away and two cousins who live in Dallas. Everyone is so thrilled and excited to welcome a baby into our family.

My family is excited for me to share my heart with a new baby as they know I've always wanted to be a mom. I have a great support system of family and friends. With a birth mother's blessing, I will share my love and support with a child.

My Adventures and Traditions

I love to travel and especially love to try new foods—I can read menus in three different languages. I can't wait to show a child a world full of different cultures, foods, languages, and adventures! I love the diversity of Texas, which offers so much close to home, too.

At a Ranch

My family enjoys a cherished tradition of gathering for lunch during Thanksgiving, where we delight in preparing dishes featuring cranberries. During Christmas reunions at my uncle's, we come together to decorate the Christmas tree, a beloved tradition that symbolizes our enduring familial bond. During Diwali, I partake in the tradition of embellishing my home with radiant lights. Every year, I decorate my home with bright colors and lights, capturing the joyful essence of Diwali.

I celebrate both American and Indian holidays. I have a diverse group of friends that I hang out with and celebrate Christmas, Thanksgiving, Diwali, Holi, etc. I would like to celebrate these holidays with a child and share these wonderful traditions.
